The Defense Surprised.

The Commonwealth surprised the defense in the Caleb Powers case at Georgetown Saturday by introducing Frank Cecil, who has not heretofore testified against Powers. Cecil told practically the same story he told at the Yontsey trial, but his evidence strongly implicates Powers. He says Powers told him he was looking for a man to kill Goebel and practically offered him the job of assassin. When Cecil did not proffer his services, Powers took him to W. S. Taylor, who renewed the proposition and offered him $2,500 and a pardon if he would assassinate Goebel. Cecil told his story in a calm manner and several times looked the defendant squarely in the face while testifying. Several other witnesses, all of whom have appeared at former trials, were on the stand. The defense cross examined Cecil on Monday. Judge Robbins ruled on the opening of court that the State could introduce testimony of the occurrences of the days following the shooting of Wm. Goebel and to the time of his death, which were a continuation of the alleged conspiracy to prevent Goebel from being declared Governor of the State.

TESTIMONY IS ALL IN.

The Defense in the Marcum Murder Trial Rested.

Eight Arguments Will Be Made, Four For the Prosecution and Four For the Defense—Case Will Go to the Jury in a Few Days.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 7.—Thursday afternoon Capt. B. B. Golden, one of the attorneys for the defense, announced that their side rested as to evidence in chief.

In the case of commonwealth of Kentucky against Curtis Jett and Tom White, on trial here for the killing of James B. Marcum, the day was principally taken up in the impeaching of the morality and truthfulness of Capt. B. J. Ewen, one of the main witnesses for the prosecution. Some 25 witnesses from his own county and other witnesses from Powell county, where he resided until he moved to Jackson, some ten years ago, testified that his morality was bad as well as his reputation for truthfulness. At the same time some of them testified that he was a church goer, a constant attendant on Sunday-school, that he never drank whisky or gambled at all.

Many of them were confused on cross-examination, especially those from Breathitt county, by the fact of their being strongly allied to the Hargis faction in Breathitt county, and attempting to prove what was said to them about Ewen's character by men who had a criminal record. The best impeaching evidence was offered by a number of citizens of Powell county, including among their number the county judge, the sheriff and others who had the appearance of being well to do men who testified to Ewen's bad reputation as to morality and truthfulness among his neighbors, although each of these witnesses as far as their personal opinion was concerned testified without exception that he paid his debts promptly, never drank, never gambled and attended church regularly while residing among them.

"Tickle" Jim Bach, who testified several days ago for the defense, was contradicted by the witnesses Russell, for the prosecution, and also by Cy Holland. Tickle swore he had seen the killing several days ago, and these witnesses say that Tickle told them that he did not see the killing and that he was glad he did not see it.

The commonwealth is making preparations to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Tickle Bach and John L. Noble, called "Rat Ankle." They will be charged with false swearing. Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 8.—In the famous case of the commonwealth of Kentucky against Curtis Jett and Thomas White, after 11 days trial of the case, and in which all points were hotly contested by able attorneys representing both sides, the commonwealth rested its case on rebuttal at 4:01 Friday afternoon. The defense at 4:30 announced that they were through with their side of the case.

The day was entirely taken up in introducing witnesses on rebuttal by both sides and at times very acrimonious debates were had by the opposing counsel on disputed points of law.

Robert Davidson, Abner Eversole, James B. Little, Abe Short, L. T. Bolin, Robert Fulkerson, Hardin Childers, Wiley H. Combs, N. E. Combs, J. H. Blanton and M. Forbes, witnesses for the rebuttal on prosecution, all of whom presented a very respectable appearance, testified to the good character and truthfulness of B. J. Ewen, the leading witness for the prosecution and the only one who testified that he saw the man who fired the shot that killed Marcum. They were rigidly cross-examined but stood their examination well.

Joe Moore was placed on the stand by the defense to prove that on the morning of the killing Jett was holding his hand in such a manner to his front side as to indicate that the right hand was crippled. One of the grounds of the defense is that Jett's hand was so crippled by being mangled by a log a few weeks before the killing of Marcum, that it was a physical impossibility for him to use a pistol.

Eight arguments will be made in the case, four on each side. Messrs. J. I. Blanton, W. T. Lafferty, B. B. Golden and James D. Black will speak for the defense. Messrs. Thomas D. Marcum, brother of the dead man, and a criminal lawyer of some note in Muscogee, I. T., and County Attorney J. Stanley Webster, Col. A. F. Byrd and Commonwealth's Attorney Fryer will address the jury for the prosecution. The arguments will begin in the case Saturday morning at 8:30. Instructions were not given to the jury Friday evening, but will be read to them immediately upon the convening of court Saturday morning and before the first argument.

CIRCUS TRAIN WRECK.

Twenty-Three People Killed and a Large Number Hurt.

One Elephant and Two Camels Were Killed Outright, While the Other Animals of the Menagerie and Their Trainer Escaped.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 8.—An air brake on the second section of Wallace Bros.' circus train refused to work in the Grand Trunk railway yards here early Friday, causing a collision between the two sections. The circus train was in two sections of about 35 cars each. After Thursday night's exhibition at Charlotte the two trains left for Lapeer over the Grand Trunk road, the second section leaving a half hour after the first. It was 3:45 o'clock when the first section pulled into the west end of the Grand Trunk yards here. A red light was hung on the rear car to stop the second section. Engineer Probst, of Battle Creek, who was running the engine of the rear train, says he saw this light and applied the air brakes. To his horror, it refused to work. He reversed his engine, but the momentum of the train behind was too great, and with a crash that aroused all of the town near the yards, the two trains met. Three cars of the stationary first section were telescoped and the engine and five cars of the moving train were demolished. The rear car of the first section was a caboose, in which the trainmen were sleeping, and the next two were filled with sleeping circus employees.

The greatest loss of life was in the caboose. One of the wrecked cars of the second section was occupied by five elephants and several camels. One of the elephants and two camels were killed outright, while the other animals and their trainer escaped. With the exception of this car none of the menagerie was wrecked, the other demolished cars containing canvas or wagons, and there was comparatively little excitement among the wild animals.

The death list stood Friday night at 23, seven of whom are in the morgue unidentified. Coroner Farrer Friday afternoon impaneled a jury, viewed the remains and adjourned until August 14, when the inquest will be held.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst, of the second section of the train, whose home is in Battle Creek. Probst says that the air brakes on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to avoid serious consequences. General Manager F. H. McManis said Friday afternoon: "Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with the trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead in time to stop his train."

The official report on the accident issued by Superintendent Brownlee declares positively that the airbrakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition and there is evidence that they were not applied.

E. A. Guillaume, of Louisville, has telegraphed to Mayor Potter inquiring whether his brother was killed, and it is believed that he may be one of the unidentified dead.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—Twenty-two of the injured circus men were brought to Detroit Friday afternoon in a special hospital train and taken to Harper hospital. At the hospital it was stated that none of them was likely to die Friday night, although John Thomson, of Peru, Ind.; Geo. Clough, of Geneva, O., and James Stewart, of Denver, are in a serious condition and may not recover.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

POPE'S CORONATION.

Seventy Thousand People Witness the Ceremony.

It is 57 Years Since the Romans and Europe Assisted in Such a Function—Roman Nobles and Diplomats Were Present.

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X. took place Sunday in the basilica of St. Peter in the presence of the princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic church. As Cardinal Macchi, the dean of the cardinal deacons, placed the triple crown on the head of the venerable pontiff, the throng of 70,000 persons gathered within the cathedral burst into unrestrained acclamations, the choir intoned a hymn of triumph and the bells of Rome rang out a joyful peal.

It is 57 years since the Romans and lines of cardinals clad in silver and scarlet reached to the high altar with its burden of burning candles and sacred vessels, while around stood the papal guards, the pontifical court, monks and officials.

From the throne Pius X., surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The appearance of the pope in that elevated position called forth another burst of enthusiasm. The pope then blessed the altar, and after saying the "Indulgentiam" the maniple, a symbol of the cord with which Christ was bound on his capture was placed, with great ceremony, upon the pope's arm. At the same time prayers for the coronation were recited by four cardinals. Returning from the crypt, Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the pope the pontifical pallium and attached it with three golden jeweled pins, saying:

"Receive this sacred pallium as a symbol of the fullness of the pontifical office, in honor of Almighty God, the most glorious Virgin Mary, his mother, the Blessed Apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and the Holy Roman Catholic Church."

Mass was then celebrated with great

The Papal Procession.

Inside the vatican palace there was movement and bustle as the papal procession, composed of about 500 persons, all of whom had gathered early in the apostolic palace, was formed. As the procession moved through the magnificent halls and corridors of the vatican it recalled former days when all was color and picturesqueness within the palace. The central figure in the long procession was Pius X. Another figure which evoked murmurs of admiration and craning of necks was the chaplain in his crimson cape, proudly bearing the cushion on which reposed the famous triple crown so soon to rest on the head of Pius.

THE PONTIFF ENTERS.

He Was Received By the Audience With Great Acclamations.

The low ceiling sent back an exquisite echo of the "Tues Petrus," sung by the Sistine choir, whose voices were heard outside in the piazzas of St. Peter's. Cardinal Rampolla advanced with dignity, knelt and kissed the foot of the pontiff. He then presented in a firm voice the wishes and greetings of the chapter of St. Peter's, which he said, "I offer an act of obedience to your holiness and wish you a prosperous and glorious pontificate."

The procession re-formed and proceeded to the door of the basilica. On the appearance of the pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, our pope, our father," and "long live Pius X." were raised notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the basilica saying, "Acclamations are forbidden."

A quaint ceremony was then carried out. The master of the ceremonies knelt three times before the pontiff, each time lighting a handful of hemp which surmounted a silver torch, and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted, "Holy Father, thus passes away the glory of the world."

The procession then proceeded. At the chapel of the sacrament there was another halt, and his holiness left the sedan chair and prayed at the altar. On re-entering the chair he was carried to the chapel at St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass. The pope was then borne to the throne amid renewed acclamations.

pomp and ceremony. Following this, Cardinal Macchi performed the rite of incensing the pope, whom he subsequently kissed three times on the cheeks and chest, as did Cardinals Segna and Vannutelli.

KISSED HIS HANDS AND FEET.

Cardinals Offer Their Last Obedience to the Pontiff.

On the pope's return to the throne the cardinals offered their last obedience to the pontiff, kissing his hands and feet, and receiving embrace by him twice in turn. The bishops and archbishops kissed his foot and right knee, while the abbots kissed only his foot. The holy father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the cul-ating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the pontiff's mitre, and Senior Cardinal Deacon Macchi placed on the white head the triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir.

When comparative silence had been restored Cardinal Macchi addressed the pope in Latin as follows:

"Receive the tiara ornamented with three crowns. Remember thou art the father of princes and kings, the rector of the world, the vicar on earth of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen" again burst forth from the concourse.

NINE VICTIMS ARE DEAD

The Club Officials Express Sympathy and Announce That the Immediate Games at the Grounds Will Be Postponed.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—Five additional deaths occurred Sunday as the result of an accident Saturday at the Philadelphia National league baseball park, making a total of nine fatalities. Two hundred victims were treated at the various hospitals and it is believed that fully 100 more received attention at various drug stores in the vicinity of the baseball grounds. Of the injured still in the hospitals four are said to be in a critical condition.

The physicians and nurses at the several hospitals to which the injured were conveyed worked unceasingly throughout Saturday night, securing no rest and taking but little nourishment. Coroner Dugan Sunday began an investigation into the causes of the accident. No date has been set for the inquests, but the coroner said they would be held within ten days.

President Potter, of the Philadelphia baseball club, who has been out of the city, arrived Sunday night, accompanied by President Pulliam, of the National league.

Shortly after their arrival a statement was issued by the club officials expressing sympathy for the injured and for the families of the dead and announcing that immediate games would be postponed.

Two games were scheduled between Boston and Philadelphia Saturday afternoon, and the attraction drew over 10,000 persons to the ball park. The accident occurred during the fourth inning of the second game, and was indirectly due to a quarrel between drunken men in the street. The National league stands are built of steel and brick, the brick wall extending entirely around the grounds. At the top of the left field seats and extending from the grand stand to the end of the bleachers there was a walk about three feet wide, which overhung the street. It was this walk that gave way under the heavy weight.

Men who were standing on the walk were attracted by a disturbance in the street. They leaned over the side of the railing to see what was the trouble, and this drew the attention of other spectators, who rushed to the walk to see what was going on below. There were 3,000 persons sitting in the left field bleachers and the roar made by the falling timber caused a panic.

The spectators made a rush down the stand and into the field. Men and boys climbed over one another in an effort to escape, and several persons were hurt in the crush. Outside the grounds for an entire block on Fifteenth street, from Huntington street to Lehigh avenue, men and boys were writhing in pain. Some were buried under the wreckage, others were lying in the gutters and dozens were stretched out on Fifteenth street on the car tracks.

THE PRESIDENT ON LYNCHING.

Gov. Durbin Commended For the Attitude Resumed Recently.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 10.—In a letter, the publication of which was authorized Sunday, President Roosevelt commends Gov. Durbin, of Indiana, for the attitude he assumed recently respecting lynching. The president also embraces the opportunity to express his own views in reference to lynching and mob violence, generally, pointing out that mob violence is merely one form of anarchy and that anarchy is the forerunner of tyranny. The president vigorously urges that the penalty for that crime which most frequently induces a resort to lynching shall be applied swiftly and surely, but by due process of the courts, so that it may be demonstrated "that the law is adequate to deal with crime by freeing it from every vestige of technicality and delay."

"All thoughtful men," says the president, "must feel the gravest alarm over the growth of lynching in this country, and especially over the peculiarly hideous form so often taken by mob violence when colored men are the victims—on which occasions the mob seems to lay most weight, not on the crime, but on the color of the criminal."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR SHERIFF.

We are authorized to announce E. P. Clarke as a candidate for Sheriff of Bourbon County, with Albert S. Thompson and Wm. F. Talbot as deputies, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Harvey Hibler as a candidate for Sheriff of Bourbon County, with Brutus J. Clay, Jr., and James Burke as deputies, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

CHILD KILLED BY SNAKE.—The grandson of Mr. Frank Thompson, of Springfield, Ky., a child five years old, was playing in the orchard near its home with his pet kitten. The child found a large snake of the copperhead variety and, being ignorant of the danger, caught the reptile in its arms and started home. The mother appeared at that time and was horrified to find the snake striking fiercely at the kitten, which was struggling to release itself. In a moment the child released both the kitten and the snake. The cat died within a moment of the time it struck the ground, and the child lived only a short time.

TWICE AS STRONG.—Heintz's pickling vinegar is twice as strong as pure cider vinegar and is guaranteed to keep anything that is pickled in it. You can find this celebrated vinegar at BAIRD & TAYLOR'S.

NEW PLACE.—Mr. Geo. T. Lyons is ready to wait on his customers in his new building, on Main near 10th. He now has one of the neatest saloons in the city.

HAVE you seen those ladies' Oxfords that have just arrived at Thomson's?

"The Highlands of Ontario for Your Holidays."

With the knowledge of what America has to offer the summer tourists and the rest of health-seekers, the thousands of summer travelers who spend their vacation in "The Highlands of Ontario," unhesitatingly pronounce the Muskoka Lakes region the ideal, the perfectly satisfying summer resort. Such an ideal is a combination of two features—primal nature in a perfect bewilderment of beauty, charm and variety, along with the facilities for most of the modern necessities and conveniences. In addition to these, the even temperature, the high altitude (1,000 feet above the sea), the health-giving ozone from pine, hemlock and fir, and the dark soft waters of innumerable lakes, teeming with the gamest of fresh water fish. What more has a weary nerve-wrecked man or lover of nature to desire?

Handsome, illustrated descriptive publications will be sent free on application to R. McC. Smith, Southern Passenger Agent Grand Trunk Railway, 124 Woodward Ave., Detroit.

WANTED.—Buyer for first-class, high grade piano. Apply at News office. Purchaser can get bargain.

Latest Fashion Notes.

CANVAS CLOTH GOWNS.

Mushroom colored canvas cloth is the material of which this charming costume is constructed. An original device for self-colored taffeta strappings is shown, which are employed on both skirt and bodice to good advantage. The skirt is further adorned by an "uncle" flounce, which is an advance style, and the tucks are headed by simple hand embroidered designs, worked with Corticelli E E embroidery silk. The embroidery also appears on the bodice.

The bertha is just now one of the most popular and dainty of decorations for a bodice. This is sometimes made pointed or in a rounded effect, and may be made either very simple or very elaborate. Good effects may be obtained when these are made either of the same material or of a different material.

LIVE STOCK, CROP, ETC.

—Lark Garnett, of Cynthiana, has sold 20 yearling mules to Turney & Smith at $65 a head.

—There has been 150,000 bushels of wheat delivered to our Paris merchants. The prices for same have ranged from 70 to 75 cents. The average yield for Bourbon is about 12 bushels to the acre.

—Warm bran mash and warm water to drink the first twenty-four hours after calving will often save a cow from trouble and start her safely on her period of usefulness.

—A. P. Shropshire, of Centerville neighborhood, secured four first premiums of his herd of Berkshire hogs at Danville last week. Mr. J. M. Hall was there with his herd of Shorthorns and took a number of premiums.

—Clem Beachy, Jr., of Lexington, has sold to W. W. Evans, for a rich Belgian, who is going to try his luck on the American trotting turf, the three-year-old filly Libby Queen, two-year-old record 2:20, by Expedition, 2:15, dam Euxine, by Axtell 2:17; price $5,000.

HAD A CLOSE OALL.—Judge James M. Benton, of Winchester, had a narrow escape from drowning while endeavoring to save a young woman from drowning. It was at a camping party, and Judge Benton was teaching Miss Sarah Jouett how to swim. While some distance away from him, Miss Jouett got over her depth. Judge Benton hurried to her assistance, and she clung to him so that both went down twice and probably would have drowned had not Judge Jouett jumped in and saved both of them.

JETT-WHITE TRIAL.—County Attorney Webster, of Harrison, made a very strong speech Saturday for the prosecution in the Jett-White case at Cynthiana. Yesterday Judge W. T. Laferty spoke for the defense, and Thos. D. Marcum, of Indian Territory for the prosecution and B. B. Golden for the defense. The arguments will be closed to-day. See page 2.

THE BOURBON NEWS

SWIFT CHAMP, EDITOR AND OWNER.

NOTICE.—Dr. C. H. Bowen, optician, will be at A. J. Winters & Co.'s, on Thursday, August 13th. Examination free.

WANTED.—A copy of The News of July 24th. Please leave at this office.

MOTHER OF QUADS.—A colored woman of New Liberty Saturday became the mother of quadruplets—two boys and two girls—whose combined weight is 17½ pounds. All are doing well.

RESIDENCE SOLD.—Auctioneer A. T. Forsyth, for Master Commissioner Dickson, on Saturday, sold the residence of the late Mrs. John R. Doyle, on Second street, to J. H. Fahrman, for $2,911.

THOMSON'S summer shoes are just the thing for this weather.

SAVED BY A DECK OF CARDS.—At Maysville, "Jinks" Stockdale shot John Fee, colored, on Saturday afternoon. A deck of cards that Fee had in his hip pocket deflected the bullet and probably saved his life.

FOR RENT.—House and lot on Walker's Avenue, with five rooms and stable. Apply to (tf) JAMES DEMPSEY.

MOVES TO MEXICO.—John Layson, of Detroit, formerly of Millersburg, has accepted a position as manager of Parks, Davis & Co.'s laboratory at Monterey, Mexico. Wm. Layson, his brother, will take his place at the laboratory at Detroit.

FOR SALE.—Furniture in first-class hotel, and No. 1 stand, cheap for cash. Will also rent the hotel. Address P. O. Box 198 for further information. 4c.

BARGAINS.—Never could wall paper be bought at such prices as J. T. Hinton is offering this month. 1t

SUED FOR DAMAGES.—The Fayette Home Telephone Company and the Lexington Railway Company were made joint defendants Saturday in a damage suit for $10,000 for injuries, filed by John Logan, a former fireman of the telephone company.

SHOULD BE HUNG.—Omer Gray, aged sixteen years, charged with criminally assaulting Bettie Farrow, a deaf and dumb thirteen-year-old girl, in Nicholas county last Friday, was caught by Constable W. T. Harker and Jailer Bowen in Fleming county and lodged in jail.

A CHANCE WORTH TAKING.—Reduced prices in shoes and slippers.
HARRY SIMON.

TO-DAY.—Don't fail to attend the Auction Sale of Millinery this afternoon at 2 o'clock at L. B. Conway & Co.'s.

THROUGH THE HEART.—At Mt. Sterling, Saturday evening, Ben Darnell, a negro, entered the Beaumont Hotel bar and, with a drawn knife, tried to cut Tom Gibbons, the bartender, who got his pistol and shot Darnell through the heart. He died instantly. Gibbons is under arrest.

THE BEST.—Up-to-date Stew Kettles, Baking Pans and Pie Pans. The cheapest and best.
C. P. COOK & CO.

LEXINGTON FAIR.—The fifth annual Horse Show, Fair and Carnival, given by the B. P. O. Elks, at Lexington, opened yesterday and promises to be the greatest yet given. The most attractive feature of the first day was the floral parade which took place in front of the grand stand. It eclipsed its predecessors.

BUY NOW.—Baby Buggies and Hammocks can be bought at greatly reduced prices if you will buy now. J. T. Hinton has a large stock and wants to sell them.

TO-DAY.—Don't fail to attend the Auction Sale of Millinery this afternoon at 2 o'clock at L. B. Conway & Co.'s.

NEW ROLLING STOCK.—Two engines of the seventy-five contracted for by the L. and N. with the Baldwin Works are expected this week. The first arrivals will be freight. The contract calls for delivery of all the engines within the next several months. The contract price is $1,075,000. The road has also contracted for six vestibule cars and ten coaches, to be delivered in September.

A FINE BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.—We call attention to the for sale advertisement of E. F. Spears & Sons in another column. This is the best equipped mill in the South for grinding corn, handling grain, coal or general commission business.

It is a rare opportunity to get into a good paying business. (1t)

OLD COINS.—Mr. R. J. Neely, of this city, has a Confederate silver half-dollar of 1861. There are only four of these coins in existence. He also has a United States half-dollar of every year from 1800 to 1900. Mr. Neely's den at his home is filled with rare curiosities and relics—old pistols and guns of every conceivable make that have been used in almost every war in this and foreign countries. It is quite interesting to visit his den.

Let's Have No Grafting.

It was to be hoped that our new court-house would be built without the usual grafting that generally accompanies the building of such a structure, and which was so evident in the construction of a similar building in a neighboring city. We do not say that this is going on here, but we will say that the workings of the building committee are flagrant of something uncanny. If this committee has the interest of the Bourbon county tax-payers at heart, why can't they come out in the open with what is going on, and why can't they give the contracts to home bidders when they are lower and equally as good as the foreigners who they have been letting the contracts to.

For instance, the contract for furnishing the gas and electric light fixtures was let to the Vandorn Iron Works Co., of Cleveland, O., for about $2,600, when a Paris contractor's bid for the same was $1,500.

Mr. J. T. Hinton, one of the largest tax-payers in Bourbon county, has put in a bid to furnish the furniture for the building, which is known to be the lowest and best bid before the committee—still the committee has been tied up on this bid for the past week, two of them in favor of the foreign firm putting in another bid after finding out Mr. Hinton's figures.

Mr. Hinton had samples of the chair he intends putting in before the committee, which was acknowledged by the two magistrates who were against him to be the best and his bid the lowest—still they would not vote for it. The matter comes up again to-day. Mr. Hinton is perfectly willing to let the matter go before the whole court.

We understand that the committee-men who are fighting against home industries have been entertained at the factory of the contending bidder against Mr. Hinton, but of course this doesn't figure in the case.

The contract for the steel furniture for the vaults and clerks offices was let to Vandorn Iron Co., of Cleveland, O., for $2,884.29.

This business reminds us of the old story of the aged negro, who said: "Ride on a boat and when it blows up, what is you?" "Ride on a train and when it blows up, what is you?" Buy from a non-resident, who you will perhaps never see again, and the purchase is not as represented, then "what is you?" Buy from your home merchant, who is here to stay, and known to be responsible, and "what is you?"

We do not mean to make any charges against anyone, but the people of Bourbon county are building this court-house and are entitled to know what is going on and we are going from now on to give it to the public, regardless of whose toes we cramp.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT.—Mr. C. E. Ferguson, as administrator of Willie Ferguson, filed suit yesterday, in Bourbon Circuit Court, against Dr. Wash Fithian, James McClure and Henry Powers, Trustees of the Southern Methodist Church (white), of Paris, Ky., and the Southern Methodist Church (white), of Paris, Ky., for $20,000 damages. It will be remembered that Mr. Ferguson's 12-year-old son was drowned in the cistern in the basement of this church on April 12th. The plaintiff alleges in his petition that the death of the said decedent was occasioned and caused solely by gross carelessness and negligence of the defendants, their agents and employees. Walton & Rives and Hon. C. J. Bronston, of Lexington, are Mr. Ferguson's attorneys.

RUNAWAY.—On Sunday morning, about ten o'clock, there was quite an excitement on Duncan Avenue by Earl Ferguson's horse slipping the bride and running off. The horse was hitched in front of Mr. Ferguson's residence, and he had just taken his bright little son out of the buggy when the horse started, but he could not reach his head to stop him. He ran to Pleasant street and collided with the gas post on the corner at the Second Presbyterian church smashing the new buggy to pieces. He then broke loose from the buggy and kept going with the single-tree dragging behind him. He was stopped at the end of pleasant street and was unhurt.

KISERTON POSTOFFICE ROBBED.—The postoffice at Kiserton, this county, was broken into and robbed, Sunday night, of 300 two-cent stamps—250 one-cent stamps, 100 two-cent envelopes, 50 postal cards and $6.73 in cash. Mr. J. T. Kiser, the postmaster, says the stamps and cash were in the safe and it was standing open when he entered the store Monday morning. He does not remember whether he locked the combination or not when he was in it on Sunday to get some stamps for a customer. Nothing was broken about the safe, but the cash drawer in store was broken open.

CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT.—Mr. D. D. Connor, who has sub-let the Hotel Fordham for the past eighteen months, will on September 8th take possession for himself. With the genial Dan as manager, and Mrs. Connor, who is a most excellent housekeeper, in charge of the culinary department, no better hostelry can be found in Kentucky. The house will be renovated from top to bottom and put in first-class condition.

At 12 o'clock the dancers repaired to Crosdale's cafe and partook of a sumptuous luncheon, after which the dance was resumed. The young ladies never looked handsomer than upon this occasion. HIS EXPERIENCE.

Not long ago I seen a show
An' heard a feller pop.
He talked a heap; seemed like he'd keep Right on an' never stop.
Just there I thought "That chap don't court."
The way I courted Belle,
Said I to her: "Well, what d'ye say?"
An' she made answer right away:
"I guess I might as well."
That actor chap he had on tap
The tallest kind o' talk;
He'd yell an' shout, an' all about
The stage he'd strut an' walk.
The way with us, we made no fuss
Our sentiments to tell.
"Well, what d'ye say?" to her said I,
An' right away she made reply:
"I guess I might as well."

I didn't 'low to her as how
My buzzum hotly burned;
I only sat an' watched her pat
The butter she'd just churned.
She looked so sweet an' smart an' neat
I hugged her for a spell.
An' then, "Well, what d'ye say?" I said,
An' she said, blusht' rosy red:
"I guess I might as well."

It seemed to me that feller he,
For all his flow'ry style,
Might have been showed some things I
knewed:
His gassin' made me smile.
It don't take chin a gal to win;
I didn't stomp an' yell.
I said to her: "Well, what d'ye say?"
An' Belle, she spoke up right away:
"I guess I might as well."

A Daughter of the Sioux

By GEN. CHARLES KING.

Copyright, 1903, by The Hobart Company.

Then followed a thrilling battle for life—two red enemies now enrolled against the blue. "Fight fire with fire" is the old rule of the prairie. Ray had promptly met the oncoming sweep of the torrent by starting a smaller blaze that should at least clear the surface close at hand, and, by eating off the fuel, stop, possibly, the progress of the greater flame. But the minor blaze had also to be stopped lest it come snapping and devouring within the grove. It is no easy matter to check a prairie fire against a prairie gale when every human aid is summoned. It is desperate work to try to check one when to the fires of nature are added the furious blaze of hostile arms, every rifle sighted by savage, vengeful foe. "Check it, lads, ten yards out!" shouted Ray to his gallant fellows, now lost in the smoke, while he again rushed across the front to meet the charging Sioux. With his brave young face all grim, Field was already at work, guiding, urging, aiding his little band. "Both hands! Both hands!" he cried, as, wielding his folded blanket, he smote the fringe of flame. "Stamp it out! Great God! Wing, are you hit?"

"BOTH HANDS! BOTH HANDS!" HE CRIED, AS, WIELDING HIS FOLDED BLANKET, HE SMOTE THE FRINGE OF FLAME.

For answer, the sergeant by his side went plunging down, face foremost, and little Trooper Denny, rushing to aid his young officer in the effort to raise the stricken man, as suddenly loosed his hold and, together again, these two sworn comrades of many a campaign lay side by side, as they had lain in camp and bivouac all over the wide frontier, and poor Denny could only gasp a loyal word of warning to his officer. "Get back, sir; for God's sake, get back!" ere the life blood came gushing from his mouth. Bending low, Field grabbed the faithful fellow in his strong arms, and calling to the nearest men to look to Wing, bore his helpless burden back through stifling smoke clouds; laid him on the turf at the foot of a cottonwood, then ran again to the perilous work of fighting the flame, stumbling midway over another prostrate form. "Both hands! Both hands!" he yelled as again his blanket whirled in air; and so, by dint of desperate work, the inner line of flame at last was stayed, but every man of the gallant little squad of fire-fighters had paid the penalty of his devotion and felt the sting of hissing lead—Field last of all. Westward now, well-nigh 100 yards in width, a broad, black, smoking patch stretched across the path-way of the swift-coming wall of smoke and flame, a safeguard to the beleaguered command worth all the soldier's sacrifice it cost. In grand and furious sweep, the scourge of the prairie sent its destroying line across the wide level to the south of the sheltering grove, but in the blood and sweat of the heroic men the threatening flames of the windward side had sputtered out. The little garrison was safe from one, at least, of its dread and merciless foes, though five of its best lay dead or dying, and others still sore stricken, in the midst of the smoking grove.

"Field, old boy," said Ray, with brimming eyes, as he knelt and clasped the hand of the bleeding lad, while the Sioux fell back in wrath and dismay from the low-aimed, vengeful fire of the fighting line, "this means the Medal of Honor for you, if word of mine can fetch it!"

CHAPTER XIII.

To say the Sioux were furious at the failure of their second attempt would be putting it far too mildly. The fierce charge from the northward side, made under cover of the blinding smoke sent drifting by the gale across the level flats, had been pushed so close that two red braves and half a dozen ponies had met their death within 60 paces of the rifle pits. There lay the bodies now, and the Indians dare not attempt to reach them. The dread, wind-driven flame of the prairie fire, planned by the Sioux to burn out the defense, to serve, as their ally, had been turned to their grave detriment. Ray and his devoted men had stopped the sweep of so much of the conflagration as threatened their little stronghold, but, ranging unhampered elsewhere, the seething wall rolled on toward the east, spreading gradually toward its flanks, and so, not only consuming vast acres of bunch grass, but checking the attack that should have been made from the entire southern half of the Indian circle. Later, leaping the sandy stream bed a little to the west of the cottonwoods, it spread in wild career over a huge tract along the left bank, and now, reuniting with the southern wing some distance down the valley, was roaring away to the bluffs of the Mini Posa, leaving death and desolation in its track. Miles to the east the war parties from the reservation, riding to join Lane Wolf, sighted the black curtain of smoke, swift sailing over the prairie, and changed their course accordingly. Not so many miles away to the south Webb's skirmishers, driving before them three or four Sioux scouts from the northward slope of the Moccasin Ridge, set spurs to their horses and took the gallop, the main body following on.

With their eyelids blistered by heat and smoke, Ray's silent, determined little band could see nothing of the coming force, yet knew relief was nigh; for, close at hand, both east and west, large bodies of the enemy could be seen swift riding away to the north.

They had hoped, as Fox had planned and promised, to burn out and overwhelm the little troop at the grove before the column from Frayne could possibly reach the spot. They had even anticipated the probable effort of the command to check the flames, and had told off some 50 braves to open concentric fire on any party that should rush into the open with that object in view. They had thought to send in such a storm of lead, even from long range, that it should daunt and drive back those who had dared the attempt. They had stormed indeed, but could neither daunt nor drive back. Ray's men had braved death itself in the desperate essay, and, even in dying, had won the day.

But their losses had been cruel. Three killed outright; three dying and eight more or less severely wounded had reduced their fighting strength to nearly 30. The guards of the sorrels, herded in the stream bed, had all they could do to control the poor, frightened creatures, many of them hit, several of them felled, by the plunging fire from the far hillsides. Even though driven back, the Sioux never meant to give up the battle. On every side, leaving their ponies at safe distance, by dozens the warriors crawled forward, snakelike to the edge of the burned and blackened surface, and from there poured in a rapid and most harassing fire, compelling the defense to lie flat or burrow further, and wounding many horses. The half hour that followed the repulse of their grand assault had been sorely trying to the troop, for the wounded needed aid, more men were hit, and there was no chance whatever to hit back. Moving from point to point, Ray carried cheer and courage on every side, yet was so constantly exposed as to cause his men fresh anxiety. Even as he was bending over Field a bullet had nipped the right shoulder strap, and later another had torn through the crown of his campaign hat. In all the years of their frontier fighting they had never known a hotter fire; but Ray's voice rang out through the drifting vapor with the same old cheer and confidence. "They can't charge again till the ground cools off," he cried. "By that time they'll have their hands full. See how they're scudding away at the southward even now. Just keep covered and you're all right." And, barring a growl or two from favored old hands who sought to make the captain take his own medicine and himself keep covered, the answer was full of cheer.

"Send six of your men over to the south front, sergeant," were Ray's orders to Winsor, as he hurried over to join Clayton again. "They may try one final charge from that side, and give us a chance to empty a few more saddles." Creeping and crouching through the timber, the chosen men obeyed, and were assigned to stations under Clayton's eye. The precaution was wise, indeed, for, just as the captain foresaw, a rally in force began far out over the southward slopes, the Indians gathering in great numbers about some chieftain midway between the coming force and the still beleaguered defenders of the grove. Then, brandishing lance and shield and rifle, as before, they began spreading out across the prairie, heading now for the cottonwoods, while others still faced and fired on the far blue skirmish line. The fierce wind, sweeping across the direction of the attack, deadened all sound of hoof or war chant, but there was no mistaking the signs, no doubt of the intent, when, in a little moment more, the earth began to tremble beneath the dancing pony feet, telling, almost with the swiftness of sight, that the grand advance had begun. But other eyes were watching, too. Other soldiers, keen campaigners as these at the Elk, were there afield, and almost at the moment the wild barbaric hoard burst yelling into their eager gallop, and before the dust cloud hid the distant slopes beyond, the exultant shout went up from the captain's lips, as he threw down his glass and grabbed his carbine. "It's all right, men! The major's at their heels. New let 'em have it!"

Now, with heavier losses than had befallen Wayne in '76, Ray's command beheld with almost tranquil hearts the coming of the fierce array in final charge. Behind them, not two miles, to be sure, rode in swift, well-ordered pursuit, the long line of comrade troopers. But there had been intervening years of campaign experiences that dulled to a degree the earlier enthusiasms of the soldier, and taught at least the assumption of professional composure that was the secret wonder of the suckling trooper, and that became his chief ambition to acquire. It is one thing to charge home at hard-fighting command when friends and comrades back the effort and cheer the charging line. It is another to charge home conscious that other chargers are coming at one's heels. Magnificent as a spectacle, therefore, this closing dash of Lane Wolf's warriors was but a meek reminder of their earlier attack. Long before they came within 400 yards of the leafy stronghold—the moment, indeed, the brown Springfields began their spiteful bark—to right and left the warriors veered, far out on either flank. Screeching and yelling as was their savage way, they tore madly by, flattened out against their ponies' necks, and those who could use their arms at all, pumping wild shots that whistled harmless over the heads of the defenders and hit the blackened prairie many a rod beyond. Only jeers rewarded the stirring spectacle—jeers and a few low-aimed, sputtering volleys that brought other luckless ponies to their knees and sprawled a few red riders. But in less than five minutes from the warning cry that hailed their coming, Lane Wolf and his hosts were lining Elk Tooth ridge and watching with burning hate and vengeful eyes the swift, steady advance of Webb's long blue fighting line, and the utter unconcern of the defense. Even before the relieving squadron was within carbine range certain of Ray's men had scrambled out upon the northward bank and, pushing forward upon the prairie, were possessing themselves of the arms and ornaments of the two dead warriors whom the Sioux had striven in vain to reach and bear within their lines. Ray and Clayton at the moment were strolling placidly forth upon the southward "fence" to receive and welcome the little knot of comrades sent galloping in advance to greet them. There was perhaps just a suspicion of exaggerated nonchalance about their gait and bearing—a regimental weakness; possibly—and no other officer save Lieut. Field happened to be within earshot when Winsor's voice on the other front was heard in hoarse command: "Come back there, you fellows! Back, or you're goners!"

The sight had proved too much for some of the Sioux. Down again at furious speed came a scattered cloud of young braves, following the lead of the tall, magnificent chief who had been the hero of the earlier attack—down into the low ground, never swerving or checking pace, straight for the grove, the three or four inquisitive bluecoats in the meantime scurrying for shelter; and the yell that went up at the sight of the Indian dash and the quick reopening of the sputtering fire brought Ray, running once again to the northward edge of the timber, wondering what could be amiss. Field was lying on his blanket, just under the bank, as the captain darted by, and grinned his gratification as he heard the brief, assuring words: "Webb's here—all hands with him." An instant later a bullet whizzed through the roots of the old cottonwood above his head, and from far out afield, deadened by the rush of the wind, a dull crackle of shots told that something had recalled the Sioux to the attack, and for three minutes there was a lively fusillade all along the northward side. Then it slowly died away, and other voices, close at hand—someone speaking his name—called the lad's attention. He was weak from loss of blood, and just a little dazed and flighty. He had meant three hours ago that when he next encountered his post commander his manner should plainly show that senior that even a second lieutenant had rights a major was bound to respect. But, only mistily now he saw bending over him the keen, soldierly features—the kind, winsome gray eyes, filled with such a world of concern and sympathy—and heard the deep, earnest tones of the voice he knew so well, calling again his name and mingling cordial praise and anxious inquiry, and all the rancor seemed to float away with the smoke of the last carbine shots. He could only faintly return the pressure of that firm, muscular hand, only feebly smile his thanks and reassurance, and then, he, too, seemed floating away somewhere into space, and he could not manage to connect what Webb had been saying with the next words that fastened on his truant senses. It must have been hours later, too, for darkness had settled on the valley. A little fire was burning under the shelter of the bank. A little group of soldiers were chatting in low tone, close at hand. Among them, his arm in a sling, stood a stocky little chap whose face, seen in the flickering light, was familiar to him. So was the eager brogue in which that little chap was speaking. A steward was remonstrating, and only vaguely at first, Field grasped the meaning of his words:—

"The captain said you were not to try to follow, Kennedy, at least not until Dr. Waller saw you. Wait till he gets here. He can't be three miles back now."

"To hell wid ye!" was the vehement answer. "D'ye think I'd be maundherin' here wid the whole command gone on after them bloody Sioux? I've made my mark on wan o' them, an' he's the buck I'm after."

"He's made a mark on you, Kennedy," broke in a scoldier voice. "You mad fool, trying to tackle a chief like that—even if he was hit, for he had his whole gang behind him."

"Sure he dared me out, an' what's this he called me?—a d—d that!—me that niver—"

"Oh, shut up, Kennedy," laughed a brother Irishman. "You were full as a goat at 'K' troop's stables—Where'd ye get the whisky if—"

"I'll lay you, Lanigan, when I get two hands agin, though I misdoubt wan would do it. It's me horse I want now and lave to go on wid the capt'n. Ready now, sir," he added, with sudden change of tone and manner, for a tall, slender form came striding into the fire light, and Field knew Blake at the instant, and would have called but for the first word from the captain's lips.

"Your heart's safe, Kennedy. I wish your head was. Your past master in blasphemy out there won't eat it, at all events."

"Did ye get him, sorr—after all?" "I didn't. His English spoiled my aim. 'Twas Winsor shot him. Now, you're to stay here, you and Killmaine. The doctor may bring dispatches, and you follow us with the first to come." An orderly had led forth a saddled horse, and Blake's foot was already in the stirrup. "They say it was Red Fox himself, Kennedy," he added. "Where on earth did you meet him before?"

"Shure, I niver knew him, sorr," was the quick reply, as Blake's long, lean leg swung over the big charger's back and the rider settled in saddle. "But he knew you perfectly well. He dared you by name when we closed on them—you and Mr. Field."

And when an hour later the veteran surgeon came and knelt by the side of the young officer reported seriously wounded, and took his hand and felt his pulse, there was something in the situation that seemed to call for immediate action. "We'll get you back to Frayne to-morrow, Field," said Waller, with kind intent. "Don't—worry now."

"Don't do that, doctor," feebly, surprisingly intoned the fevered lad. "Don't take me back to Frayne!"

To Him That Hath.

Philanthropy and "business" are rather curiously related in the minds of some people, suggested by an anecdote of a Maine farmer. He lived at Cape Elizabeth, and when he went to Portland he invariably favored certain friends with samples of his produce.

Perhaps it only "happened so," but anyway these friends were always well to do, and Mr. Lufkin never hitched the old horse to drive home without finding, tucked away in the wagon, something in return fully as valuable as his tribute of vegetables, if not more so.

The neighbors noticed that he always left his little remembrances with people who were "well fixed." So one day, when eggs were away up in price, and he was starting to town with a lot of fresh ones for a certain friend, some one said to him curiously:

"Why don't you give those eggs to some poor family?"

"O-ho," said Mr. Lufkin, "poor people can't afford to eat eggs at this time of year! Eggs is high!"—Lewiston Journal.

They Missed the Coat.

When the Grant family was in camp in the Adirondacks, during Gen. Grant's first term as president, Mrs. Grant had some trouble with the washing. A guide recommended a woman who lived a little way down the lake. Mrs. Grant engaged her. Two days afterward she saw the washerwoman paddling toward the shore in a dugout, with a heap of snowy linen piled in front of her.

"Less'n a year ago," said the woman, apologetically, "I wouldn't had to 'a' used the boat. I'd bring it by the coil. But one day he jes' got colic or something, and rolled over on the grass and died. My, how we miss that coil! We'd had him for 20 years."—New York Times.

In the days of Louis XIV. even warriors bandied epigrams with one another.

The Maréchal de Grammont had taken a fortress by siege.

"I will tell you a secret," said its military governor, after surrendering. "The reason of my capitulation was that I had no more powder."

"And, secret for secret," returned maréchal, suavely, "the reason of my accepting it on such easy terms was that I had no more balls."—Youth's Companion.

ONE BASS THRICE TAKEN.

Greedy Fish Comes Back After the Bait Although Wounded in the Effort.

Sometimes a fish strikes because it is hungry, sometimes because it is irritated, sometimes because it has got into the habit of doing so. There are fish which, when a bait has been snatched away from them once, cannot be tempted to attack it again, though the hook has not touched them; there are others which will return to the charge, even though they have been badly scratched, says the New York Sun.

Recently a couple of men fishing from a boat on Round Lake, in Sawyer county, Wis., caught a couple of dozen of bass and, having enough, returned to the water all taken thereafter. One returned a three-pounder whose side had been freshly scarred by a muskallonge.

A moment afterward the frog was taken and he hauled out a fish scarred in the same place. He believed it to be the same fish, but to make sure clipped the edge of a back fin with his knife and put it in the water.

After a couple of casts the frog was again seized and the fish, after a fight, was reeled in. It was the marked bass. To avoid taking this fish all of the afternoon the boat was moved away.

Early in June two friends named Wade and Shively, fishing on Long Lake, Wis., lost two frogs apiece and all within five minutes. They were using small green frogs hooked through the lips. They believed that some extraordinarily smart bass was after their hook.

Then Shively got a strike and hooked his fish. A big fight followed, and when the bass was landed it was found that it had taken all five frogs.

George Clark, of Chicago, fishing in the Gogebic region of Michigan this spring, hooked a muskallonge when trolling with some sixty feet of line out. The fish immediately rolled over on the line, wrapping it about its body twice or thrice, and gave a hard fight. After twenty minutes of work it was brought to the boat and shot through the head.

It weighed 12 pounds, not a particularly big musky, but strong and game. Certainly it struck at the spoon because it was hungry and not because it was hungry, for sticking out of one side of its mouth was the tail of a bass which weighed a pound and a half. Three inches of the tail and body projected; the remainder of the bass was firmly fastened in the maw and doubtless the tail would have been swallowed after the other part was digested if Clark and his spoon had not happened along.

The musky made its fight with the bass sticking out of one side of its mouth and the hook sticking into the other side of it, and the bass was not loosened at all by the struggles.

HOME OF CASHMERE SHAWLS.

There is Not Enough Demand for the Industry to Keep Workers Employed.

A New Yorker who is now living in Shadipore, India, in the vale of Cashmere, the home of the beautiful Cashmere shawl, gives a melancholy account of the decline of a great and famous industry. These rare and costly shawls, which were so much prized in the days of our grandmothers and handed down as heirlooms from mother to daughter, are still made in Cashmere, but their glory has departed, and the cheap and seductive aniline dye has displaced the soft and beautiful colorings in the old-time vegetable dyes, says the New York Tribune.

The men who understand their manipulation have gone to more lucrative fields, or else they lie in humble graveyards hard by the straggling village streets, and the wild iris clothes their resting places with colors far more delicate than any they ever mixed.

The Cashmere shawl industry received its death blow during the Franco-Prussian war, at the breaking up of the French court. The shawls were brought to France for the great Napoleon III, crumpled in the dust the vogue of the Cashmere shawl fell with it, and famine and distress invaded the far-away valleys of Cashmere.

Shadipore, which was once one of the centers of the Cashmere shawl industry, is beautifully located in a valley at the junction of the Sind and Jhelum rivers. Numerous herds of cattle find rich pasture on the surrounding hills, and the giant chenar, the glory of Cashmere, makes the valley look like a park. But the village has shrunk to a mere hamlet of rickety houses, and the luxuriant vegetation fails to cover its bareness and poverty. What is left of the shawl industry is carried on by boys and men, who earn from two to eight annas a day, or from four to eight cents in American coinage. For this beggarly sum they sit all day long at the looms, which are almost as forlorn as themselves in appearance, for they date back to the days of prosperity and are held together by a generous use of string.

There is just enough demand for the shawls to keep the industry alive. Rich Cashmerians like to wear Cashmere shawls, and also employ them as draperies, and a few find their way to Central Asia and Tibet.

His Harvest Moon.

"A young friend of mine," said Senator Joseph W. Bailey, "married, not long ago, a woman of 30 years. She was rich and ugly; he was handsome and poor."

"The day after their wedding I met the bride and bridegroom on a Pullman train, traveling west. The bridegroom went into the smoking compartment with me, and we lighted up. He smoked gloomily. He was silent a long while."

U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA Recommends Pe-ru-na For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Catarrh of the Stomach is Generally Called Dyspepsia—Something to Produce Artificial Digestion is Generally Taken.

Hence, Pepsin, Pancreatin and a Host of Other Digestive Remedies Has Been Invented.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of the Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

EX. U. S. Senator M. C. Butler from South Carolina, was Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., says:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh. Peruna does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods.

Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peruna cures it. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peruna cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peruna cures it, as well in this location as in any other.

Peruna is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Peruna cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh.

Kentucky Editors' 1903 Outing.

After being wine and dined in grand style for two days at Lexington, by the various newspapers, the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum, Lexington Brewery, Kentucky University, State College and Judge James H. Mulligan, the Kentucky Press Association started on their annual summer outing, which proved to be one of the most enjoyable they have yet taken. The reliable old L. & N. furnished a special train to Louisville, and from there we were taken care of by the Monon R. R. to Chicago, where we were met at the Dearborn Station with a number of tallyhosses, furnished by two large type houses, Barnhart Brothers & Spindler and The American, and given a splendid ride around Chicago.

Leaving Chicago, we arrived at Battle Creek, the "Queen City of Michigan," at 11 o'clock. While here we were lavishly entertained by Mr. C. W. Post, the proprietor of the Postum Cereal Co., and the Business Men's Association. All the points of interest were visited and in the evening a dinner at Post Tavern was tendered the Association by Mr. Post, and later a reception and ball by the Athelstan Club. Among the noted places visited here was the world renowned Sanitarium, presided over by Dr. Kellogg. The whole city was in the hands of the editors and our money was counterfeited. We were escorted to the various points of interest by the reception committee and a brass band, which knew how to play "Dixie." Battle Creek will always have a tender spot in the hearts of the members of the K. P. A.

On Saturday the editorial special reached the world's famous city, Niagara Falls, for a half-day stay. Here, the party viewed, many for the first time, one of nature's greatest wonders. It is worth a trip, it is great in every respect, it is unequalled anywhere.

Some of the roofs on these are fastened to the ground by heavy chains as protection against the severe wind storms.

We arrived at Portland, Me., next, where we were entertained by Col. Dow, a son of the celebrated Neal Dow. He gave us a banquet and trolley ride about the city, during which we visited the homes of Tom Reed and Longfellow. A side trip to Old Orchard Beach, a dip in the surf, a banquet and dance wound up a day of pleasure long to be remembered by the party.

The next day the party took a short ride on the ocean and visited Peaks Island, where we were tendered a fish dinner at the Coronado-Union Hotel.

On arriving at Montreal on the return trip, Acting Mayor Sterns received the Kentuckians, presenting each with a souvenir book of views of Montreal, and a pin with the emblem of Montreal on one side and on the other, "Kentucky Press Association 1903." Carriages were in readiness and a drive about the city was enjoyed, winding up on Mt. Royal, where a champagne dinner was given by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen, after which oratory from both the Kentuckians and Canadians flowed in abundance, as did the champagne.

The final stop was made at Toronto, where the party was lavishly entertained. After visiting the Muskoka chain of lakes we started for home, all thoroughly tired out, but delighted with the trip and the reception accorded us everywhere.

The Association was particularly fortunate in railroad accommodations and accomplished passenger men. Mr. R. McC. Smith, Southern Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, over which road the Association traveled after leaving Chicago, and Mr. H. R. Charlton, the Advertising Agent, accompanied the editors at all times, and there was nothing they wanted they couldn't get by asking. Mr. Geo. W. Vaux, Assistant Passenger Agent of the same line, also met the editors upon the return and did the handsome all along the line. The Grand Trunk Railway is a great system, it is broad gauged in every respect and deserving of the success it is winning.

All in all, the trip was a most delightful one and believe that there is not a member of the party, who would not vote for a repetition of it. Secretary "Bob" Morningstar, by his courtesy and attention further endeared himself to the members of the Association, and as far as we are concerned, he may hold the office as long as he wants it.

Special courtesies were extended to the party by the following individuals and companies:

Lexington—Fred T. Ballard, J. R. Williamson, J. E. Jepper & Co., Lexington Street Railway, E. K. Asylum, Kentucky State University, State A. & M. College, Lexington Brewery, Democrat, Herald, Leader, Observer (souvenir).

Louisville—L. & N., Monon.

Chicago—Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, American Type Founders.

Battle Creek—Postum Cereal Co., The Athelstan Club, Kellogg Sanitarium, Battle Creek Sanitarium, newspapers, factories.

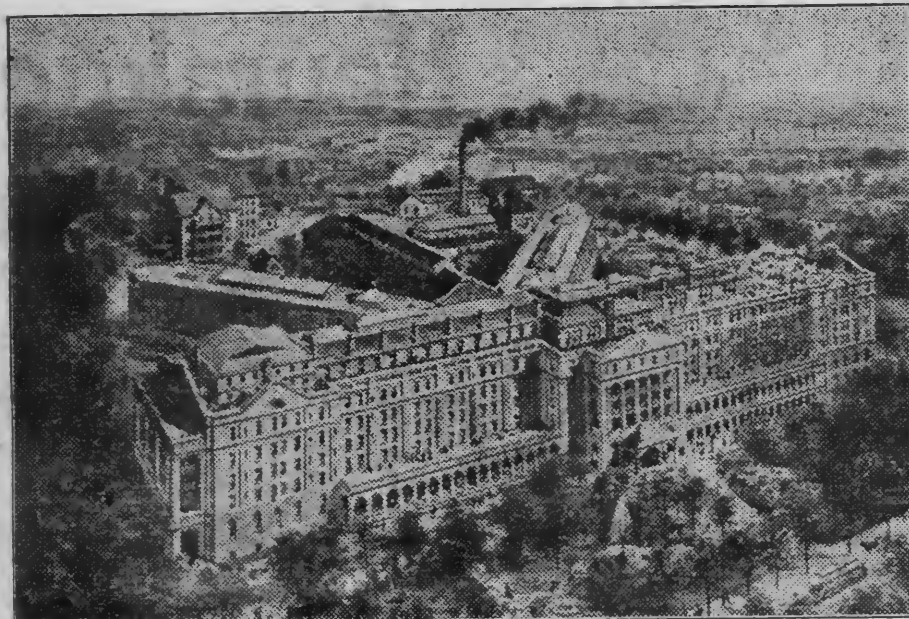

Quebec—Quebec Light Railway and Power Co., newspapers.

Portland—Col. Dow, James E. Dunn, Advertiser, Casco Bay Steamers.

Montreal—G. T. Bell, G. P. A. Grand Trunk R. R., Mayor Sterns, Ald. Geo. W. Sadler, Richlieu & Ontario Steamer Co., Thos. Henry Manager.

Toronto—Ald. Ward, chairman, Reception Committee, City Council, City Building, City's Reception.

Frankfort—E. B. Taylor, Jr., & Co. Cincinnati Paper & Cordage Co. S. C.

THE BATTLE CREEK SANITARIUM

Is one of the show places of the "Queen City of Michigan" and is always the first thing pointed out to visitors as proof that the city has other than a manufacturing side. The main building is 550 feet in length, over a tenth of a mile, but if the three wings were placed side by side with the main building the combined frontage would be 1,040 feet. It cost over half a million dollars and can accommodate over 1,000 guests. There are seven acres of floor space in the main buildings, five of which are of marble mosaic. The dining-room has an area of one-fourth of an acre. The place is much frequented by Southern people who come to Battle Creek as to a summer resort and find it most beneficial to their health to stop a few weeks at the big sanitarium.

The Battle Creek Sanitarium is incorporated under the same laws of the state of Michigan as are hospitals and other charitable institutions. No profits are paid the managers of the institution. As soon as the immense new building is paid for all moneys received beyond the running expenses are, by the rules of the incorporation, to be turned over to charitable objects.

The next point reached by the party was Kingston, Ontario, where a magnificent steamer was boarded for a 300-mile ride down the St. Lawrence river, passing through the Thousand Islands. This was certainly one of the most beautiful sights of the trip. On nearly every island was a quaint summer home of some millionaire or a beautiful hotel. The weather was fine, nearly every one having to don their wraps. After viewing the islands, the peculiar sensation of shooting the rapids was experienced.

Montreal was reached on Sunday evening, and after taking dinner at St. Lawrence Hall, the party left immediately for the historic old city of Quebec, reaching there at 7:45 the next morning. This is certainly a quaint old city, and is full of historic sights, and one could easily spend a month there and not see them all. The headquarters at this point was the beautiful Chateau Frontenac, overlooking the St. Lawrence from a bluff about 700 feet above. The most interesting points visited were the Citadel, the strongest natural fortifications in North America, and the various churches. The population of Quebec is 80,000—70,000 being French. We were entertained by the French newspaper men while there.

The most interesting part of our trip was the visit to the Church of St. Anne de Beaupre. The church is a magnificent place, but the most interesting feature was the wonderful cures which have been effected. While we were in the church more than 1,000 people came in and engaged in prayer. They were afflicted with most every disease known to mankind, but the hundreds of cures piled in front of the altar told more plainly than words what had been done.

Passing through Vermont, New Hampshire and viewing the White Mountains and quaint old farm houses, some of which were quite a sight to our party. Owing to the severe weather, most of the houses and barns are built
